

[8/23/2024, 8:33:07 PM] Thyra Auvray

{Game Time: Oct 26, 2023 00:04}

Day's passed as Lord Riji and Commander Thyra Auvray led those that volunteered and a number of the Obsidian Order south, the journey long and mostly cloudy with each step. The chilling wind seems to give way to things to come as a stillness fills the air. The need to deal with the enemy to the south great and seemed to cast a shadow over the group. With Riji's group on top of the mountain pass they held proudly, the large number of troops that they had waited for never arrived. Leaving the estate to House of the Fish-Faces wide open allowing the group to simply march in. Upon entering the estate seemed to be empty, there wasn't a body in sight or a sound to fill the air besides waves crashing against boats and stone.

[8/23/2024, 8:36:15 PM] Thyra Auvray

{Game Time: Oct 26, 2023 00:04}

Thyra Auvray looked around with her brows pushed together, the sight of inside the estate leaving a bad taste in her mouth. "Stay quiet and keep your eyes open." She states glancing over her shoulder at Maxwell.

[8/23/2024, 8:36:24 PM] Rory

{Game Time: Oct 26, 2023 00:04}

Rory was a stout man. Only a bit shorter than average, he liked to eat and it showed. Though Rory put it to good use, giving his life to the cause of the Obsidian Order he trained, worked, and fought hard. Now, in his black and gold armor he marched south under the command of Thyra, ready to serve his duty. He looked around now, the eeriness of no one being there weighed on him. He stayed on high alert as they moved.

[8/23/2024, 8:36:47 PM] Riji Calderon

{Game Time: Oct 26, 2023 00:04}

Riji marches into town looking around as he does so. He stays alert, having secured the mountain pass easily he had hoped that his plan had more merit than an absolutely unopposed approach. The plan; was not all but useless aside from their rear now guarded by a host of the Obsidian Order and Caldera Legion left to guard the way. Now, House Mustapha's home was in view, but the quiet stillness gave Riji a deep pause. He looked to those with him, "Hold fast, and wait for the Commander to give the order."

[8/23/2024, 8:37:43 PM] Ser Gavicus

{Game Time: Oct 26, 2023 00:04}

Ser Gavicus had been quietly enjoying the march to the south with his supply of wine skins. Even now, inside the gate, the Knight of Castor lifts a wine skin from his belt, taking a hearty drink before lashing it back in place. "Place looks more deserted than the Forty-Gun Tavern when someone don't pay their tab," He comments, his short sword lowered in his left hand as he looks around.

[8/23/2024, 8:37:55 PM] Sergio Kimura

{Game Time: Oct 26, 2023 00:04}

The air was thick with tension as Sergio led Thalia and Ezlain through the narrow alleyway, their footsteps muted against the stone underfoot. Sergio's eyes darted from shadow to shadow, every movement calculated, every sense on high alert. He held up a hand, signaling for Thalia and Ezlain to stop, as his sharp instincts caught something—a faint rustling, too deliberate to be the wind.

{Game Time: Oct 26, 2023 00:04}
Machar moved with the two he was assigned to. Halbard in hand he would gaze around with caution. His steps and gaze both calculated to keep utmost quiet.

He stepped cautiously about the estate, staying vigilant for any threats with his staff ready. "Alright I've got your back." He said in response.

He continued to walk until he looked right around the building corner spying Thyra's fiery red hair in the distance with Ser Gavicus. He signaled to them as they made their presence known.

{Game Time: Oct 26, 2023 00:04}

Riji approaches the water's edge. A smell picked up on his senses, as he gazes deeper into the water. A mix of metal in the salt water as he eyes what could only be bodies floating in the water. The corpses smashing into the dock as the waves cast their bodies back and forth. "Shol's bones... Are they from House Mustapha?.." He couldn't make out sigils or any identifiers in the cloudiness of the day, not to mention the bodies were half submerged. He turns toward Thyra's group, walking a bit into voice range. "Commander! Bodies, cast into the waves!"

Riji looked around the dock, "There is a chill here. Bad signs abound Commander, or perhaps fortune? Could House Mustapha and the Tiameren have cut ties and their alliance shattered?" He motions out to the bodies, "Could this be the result? We sent no forward party, and this place appears sacked. Perhaps we could fetch a body, inspect it?"

As Sergio walked across the deck of the ship, his gaze swept over the water, scanning the lifeless bodies that drifted in the waves. His eyes settled on one in particular—a young man, face-up and eerily still, unlike the others. A cold shiver ran through Sergio, and the warmth drained from his face, his expression hardening with a mix of anger and sorrow. "These people are monsters," he muttered under his breath, the bitterness in his voice clear. "House Mustapha sealed their own fate when they chose to ally with them..." Unable to shake the sight of the young man from his mind, Sergio shook his head and made a decision. He moved quickly, stepping off the ship and making his way to the edge. Without a second thought, he jumped into the water with a splash, determined to retrieve the body. The urgency in his movements spoke volumes, as if bringing this young man to shore was a way to reclaim a sliver of humanity in the midst of the chaos.

A few moments later, Sergio emerged from the water, the lifeless body of the young man in his arms. He carried him with a mix of care and sorrow, the weight of the situation pressing down on him. Once he reached the stoned street, Sergio gently laid the body down, arranging him with a dignity that contrasted the brutality of the moment. "I couldn't... leave him out there," Sergio spoke aloud, his voice heavy with the burden of what he had just done. As he took a step back, his eyes lingered on the young man's simple button-down shirt, now soaked through with water. The sigil of House Mustapha was visible on the fabric, a stark reminder of the alliance that had brought such destruction. Sergio's expression hardened, but there was a flicker of something else—perhaps regret, or a deep-seated anger at the senseless loss of life.
